WORK OF REBUILDING STARTS AT INTERIOR AFTER RECENT FIRE

Work has again started at the site of the recent fire at the Interior Oil company's site. The derrick has been started on and the machinery is all being again got ready for immediately proceeding to "make more hole" as soon as Driller Beresford says "let's go".

Although the stoppage owing to the fire has been unfortunate it is considered that it will only be a very short time before both gas and oil are being procured from this well and the officials are confident that this will be in the very near future, too.

The replacements necessary are all on the way, and will be on hand in time to make a start as soon as everything else is ready.

NEW COMPANY SECURES 15,000 ACRES OIL RIGHTS

Mr Gordon Beattie, who was among the foremost to be connected with the Wainwright oilfield, at the time the B.P. company first started up operations, last week secured the oil rights on some 15,000 acres south and east of Wainwright.

It is now arranged that within the next two months two wells will be sunk on some of this acreage, and two rotary rigs are now being sent here for this purpose. It is figured that a depth of 1600 to 2000 feet will be all that is necessary on the new anticline to reach production end in a very short time.

Several well known geologists have reported very favorably upon this new structure. There will be no stock sale in the new venture, as the necessary capital has all been subscribed or the first holes by the promoters themselves.

EXPERT SAYS OIL IN GREAT BODIES THIS FIELD

Every condition necessary for the accumulation of oil in large quantities is in evidence in the Wainwright and Central Alberta oil fields, but more wells must be drilled before the full extent of the field can be determined. Col. R. B. Harkness, Ontario oil expert, informed the Central Alberta Oil Association at a meeting held Tuesday night.

The meeting, which was largely attended by members of the association and the general public, was enthusiastically optimistic, and the statement by Col. Harkness that Alberta had wrested the leadership in oil production from Ontario in the last year was received with applause.

LOTS OF DEMAND IF SUPPLY IS AVAILABLE

The Wainwright field indicates a similar condition to the Wyoming fields, said Col. Harkness who expressed his own conviction that in the Central Alberta area a tremendous field with a great potential wealth had been uncovered.

During the evening J. C. C. Brenner, a director of the Alberta Refineries, Ltd., stated that at the present time a market for 1,500 barrels per day from the Wainwright field was available, while a much larger quantity could be marketed elsewhere if production increased as in Ontario where four refineries are operating at full capacity. Ninety-eight per cent of the crude oil put through these plants is imported.

FABYAN PETROLEUMS IS NOW RARING TO GO

All is ready now at the site of the Fabyan Pet. and Driller Clark reports that just as soon as the drill stem arrives, he will have the rotary turning for twenty four hours each day. As the structure is known in the immediate vicinity of the site, (the Maple Leaf producer is almost alongside) it will only be possibly a matter of a month before the company officials are viewing still another money maker in the shape of gas and oil pouring forth from their No. 1 hole.

We understand that it is the intention of the Fabyan Pet. to put down three holes in the same vicinity, they having a nice bunch of acreage all close in to the producers in the field.

WAINWRIGHT PETROLEUMS DERRICK GOING UP

The timbers for the derrick and lumber for the other camp buildings for the Wainwright Petroleum are in Wainwright this week. The contract for the erection of the derrick and buildings has been given to P. Laird who has built several of the derricks in the Wainwright and Fabyan districts. A heavy duty rotary rig is being shipped from the northern States, and is expected to be expected as soon as the rig and crew arrive.

ANNUAL CONVENTION WAINWRIGHT U.F.A. & U.F.W.A. JUNE 10 1926

The annual convention of the Wainwright U.F.A. and U.F.W.A. Constituency Association will be held in the Elite Theatre, Wainwright on Thursday, June 10th, commencing sharp at 10 a.m.

A very interesting and attractive program has been arranged for the whole day ending with a huge public meeting in the evening at which Premier Brownlee will be the main speaker.

Mayor Cork is away for a few days in attendance at an optical convention at Calgary.

GOVE IS WINNER IN MEN'S DRAWS OF GOLF TOURNAMENT

On account of the inclement weather of the past week only the draws in the men's games of the Golf Club's tournament have been completed. The ladies' finals will be played off this week it is expected.

The results of the games played by the gentlemen are as follows:

Sixteens—Hoeg beat Horn; F. Lepper beat Brown; Spence beat Mackenzie; D. Wallace beat K. Snyder; Gove beat D. Wallace; Steel beat Robinson; Siddall beat Telford; D. Lepper beat Cuthbertson; Walton beat R. Snyder; Western beat Billings; Wheadon beat Washburn.

Eights—F. Lepper beat Hoeg; Gove beat D. Wallace; Siddall beat Steel; D. Lepper beat Walton; Wheadon beat Western; Spence beat Fours—F. Lepper beat Spence; Gove beat Siddall; Wheadon forfeited to D. Lepper.

Semi-Finals—F. Lepper beat D. Lepper; Gove, bye.

Final—Gove beat F. Lepper.

Mr Gove also won the prize given for lowest card turned in.

The results of the ladies games will be given next week.

As a new tournament is now being arranged, all players are requested to hand in their names to any member of the committee before June 10th.

ACCIDENT TO LOCAL LADY WHILE ON VISIT TO CITY

Sympathies are being extended to Miss M. Donovan, of the Women's Specialty shop, who on Thursday last while motoring on Jasper avenue in Edmonton had the sad misfortune to have her car badly smashed up.

From what can be learned the lady driver was proceeding east on the center of the street, when she was overtaken by a street car and owing possibly to misjudgment on the part of the tram driver the larger vehicle crashed into the Chevrolet coupe driven by Miss Donovan before she could get off the right of way for the street cars.

From latest reports, Miss Donovan luckily sustained no personal injuries although the auto was badly smashed. There was no insurance carried on the car to cover this class of trouble and we sympathize with the lady in her loss.

BETHLEHEM OIL CO TO DRILL HERE ALSO

Drilling on the extensive holdings of the newly incorporated Bethlehem Oil and Refineries, Ltd., will commence as soon as preparations now being made are completed.

The company was organized to develop 1,000 acres of promising land at Wainwright and to erect a refinery plant. Two rotary drilling rigs have just been purchased and will be shipped to the field without delay.

It is planned to sink six wells and one on the advice of geologists will be sunk to a depth of 4000 feet as a test of the Wainwright field.

EMERALD DRILLERS BUSY NIGHT AND DAY WORK

"Like the 'busy little bee' are the three sets of drilling shifts working at the Emerald well site on 1-4-4, 8 on 3-4-5-6.

Over 200 feet was the record of the first day's drilling by the Emerald Oil Company here on Wednesday, and the same rapid progress is expected until the production sands are reached as three towers will be kept working on the hole under the direction of Frank Stevens and Adams. C. P. Delinger and H. C. Adams. The two rigs used are drillers who belong to the Edmonton Wainwright well.

UNITED FARMERS TO HOLD CONVENTION AT THEATRE ON JUNE 3

At the meeting in the evening Premier Brownlee will be the chief speaker and as this is his first visit to Wainwright no doubt he will be received by a crowded house.

The full programme is as follows: Morning Programme 10 a.m.—1. President's report 2. Secretary-treasurer's report 3. Appointment of committees 4. Member's report 5. Resolutions 6. Nominations of Provincial Candidates 7. Election of New Officers

Address by Premier Brownlee, June 10th 3 p.m.

NATURAL RESOURCES BILL ADOPTED WITH SCHOOL AMENDMENT

Adopting the amendment to the natural resources bill proposed by Mr. Pearson, at the suggestion of Premier Brownlee, the Alberta legislature Saturday afternoon passed the measure as amended, following an all day sitting, broken by numerous conferences, and was prorogued shortly before six o'clock by Lieutenant-Governor Egbert.

Mr Pearson's amendment was identical with one of the three optional and practically similar ones presented to the house in the morning by the premier, and which he said it was necessary to pass in order to safeguard the rights of the province in the administration of the school land funds.

The amendment is made to the clause of the agreement dealing with the administration of the school lands fund, and provides for changing the words "in accordance with the provisions of section 17 of the Alberta Act" to read "in accordance with the law of the province."

Section 17 of the Alberta Act provides for the protection of the rights of minorities in the matter of separate schools, and the contention of the government is that the amendment merely continues the status of the separate school question as it at present exists. In other words, it at some future time some individual or body wishes to challenge the validity of the act before the privy council the passage of the natural resource measure will not affect the situation.

Local Notes

After a pleasant time spent at the Peace River musical festival, at which she rendered great assistance, Mrs G. Hudson has now returned home.

The appointment of Mr Gordon Graham, as returning officer for the Wainwright constituency in the forthcoming election is now confirmed.

"A little pain NOW, will save you money later on. Have Frank Stott give you an estimate and see how reasonable it can be done."

The Imperial Lumber company unloaded three carloads of material for the oilfields during the past week, including the derrick for the Interior site.

Mrs F. McLeod will be the delegate from the local W.A.A. of St. Thomas church to the conference in Saskatoon this week.

Mrs P. McLeod will be the delegate from the local W.A.A. of St. Thomas church to the conference in Saskatoon this week.

MR A. M. McGILLIVRAY, leader of the Conservative party will speak in the Elite theatre, Wainwright, on Friday afternoon, June 10th, at 8 o'clock.

Mr G. L. Hudson, Conservative candidate for this riding will also, be present, to address the meeting.

REMAINS OF ARTHUR GARNEAU LAID TO REST FRIDAY LAST

The body of Mr Arthur Garneau who died in Vancouver as reported last week was brought back on Thursday last, and the funeral took place on Friday, interment being at Wainwright cemetery.

This most promising young man who was operated upon for appendicitis on May first was getting along nicely, when unfortunately he suffered a relapse and passed away on May 27 after a second operation had been performed. He was in his 31st year, and unmarried. He leaves a father, mother and two brothers.

The funeral service which was conducted by Rev. Father Lemaire, was held in St. Luke's church and was attended by a large gathering, the pallbearers being Messrs J. Vetch, G. Kent, E. Caron, C. Caron, J. Riley and A. Muddle.

A long procession of sympathisers and friends followed the remains to the graveside where the McLeod family carried out the arrangements.

Among the many beautiful floral offerings of respect were those from The family, wreath, Mr J. Caron and family, wreath, Mayfield Threshing Syndicate, wreath, Mayfield Club, wreath, Miss P. Kent, wreath, Mrs Buchanan, Mrs Little, Mrs Combs and many others.

ANNUAL MEETING OF ANGLO-ALBERTA CO. HAS OPTIMISTIC NOTE

Several new names were added to the board of directors of Anglo-Alberta Oils Limited at a special meeting of shareholders held on Thursday, last.

Officers of the company are now as follows: President, Earl Cork, Wainwright; managing director, Dave Credle; secretary-treasurer, N. S. Kenny Wainwright; directors, E. L. Cork, D. Credle, Wainwright; F. B. Matthews, Edmonton; Jacob Miller, Stony Plain; J. W. Stuart, Wainwright; R. A. Snyder, Wainwright; and G. L. Harper, Wainwright.

The meeting was well attended and much enthusiasm was shown regarding the operations of the company, according to one of the directors of the company, who was present.

It is hoped that everything will be in readiness for this company to start work on the good progress it looked for.

The company has a splendid location within 500 feet of B.P. No. 3B which is producing oil for the Edmonton-Wainwright well which is spurring good oil every few hours and it is expected as a leaving well. The site is a 1-4-4, 16 in 1945-6.

DRUSILLA WITH A MILLION IS REPLETE N. Y. PRODUCTION

The distinction of being the first independent production to play the Capitol Theatre, New York, in two years, goes to "Drusilla With a Million," an Associated Artists Corporation P.R.O. Gold Bond special which is at the Elite on Fri. and Sat.

A complete survey of the pictures available in the entire industry, in which "Drusilla With a Million" stands out as a rare piece of industry attraction, replete with drama, heart interest, pathos and humor, prompted "Rosy" to break his rigid adherence to the rule of "Metro-Goldwyn pictures only, and book 'Drusilla at sight'."

That "Rosy" showed his usual showmanly foresight is evidenced by the enthusiastic reception tendered "Drusilla with a Million" by the huge audience that packed the Capitol Theatre in New York and the splendid reviews given the production by the metropolitan press. Below are brief excerpts from the newspapers:

"The New York Daily Mirror says: 'Mary Carr depicts herself splendidly in a role reminiscent of 'Over the Hill' who she has an opportunity to wear nice clothes, which she does. Priscilla Bonner is a comparative new comer whom you will love. She's sweet and youthful sheds real tears 'Drusilla With a Million' is good entertainment'."

The New York Times says: 'Sequences . . . show flashes of inspiration. Mrs Carr delivers a sane, restrained and beautiful portrayal of Drusilla. Priscilla Bonner is excellent as the young mother. Her portrayal of the sorrow of a young mother is most convincing.'"

The Evening World says: 'One of the best of its kind of pictures seen on Broadway in a long time. Here is a feature with a tremendous human appeal. This picture . . . a knockout. One more in short it is amply proved here that the most appealing film plays are those built around the family hearth. Movie fans who fell in love with 'Over the Hill' a few years ago will do the same with 'Drusilla With a Million' for they will see the Mary Carr. This mother of a family of her own certainly knows the motions for the screen just as if she were there in person. . . . ably supported by Priscilla Bonner and Kenneth Harlan. Miss Bonner, particularly, gave a masterly portrayal of the orphan who is saved by the wife of an outcast society youth.'"

MR & MRS W. ARKWRIGHT CELEBRATE SILVER WEDDING

Quite a crowded party gathered on Saturday evening last at the home of Mr and Mrs W. Arkwright for the purpose of celebrating the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of this well-known couple. After a sumptuous wedding dinner a happy time was spent by the assemblage in music and games. Among the many souvenir gifts received were: Mr and Mrs J. Whittle 3-tier wedding cake; Mr and Mrs G. Arkwright, silver salt and peppers; Mr and Mrs T. Lassimot, silver cream and sugar; Mr and Mrs A. Lassimot, silver butter dish; Mr and Mrs J. Bracegirdle, silver flower vase; Miss M. Arkwright, silver bon-bon dish; Misses Bracegirdle, silver teapot stand; Mr and Mrs Carroll, silver butter dish; Mr H. Clifton, cheque; Mrs and Miss Clifton, silver pyrex dish; Mr Knowles, silver sugar shaker; Miss Hutchinson, silver sugar shell; Messrs A. and A. Hutchinson, silver berry spoon; Mr J. Duncan, silver pie dish; Mrs J. Gerow, silver tea spoons; Mr and Mrs Armstrong, silver jar; Mr and Mrs Montgomery, silver salt shaker.

REGULATIONS FOR ICE CREAM SALE NOW IN VOGUE

Recent changes in the dominion government regulations regarding the sale of ice cream have been made public, by J. McEachern, inspector of food and drugs for Alberta, on Friday as follows:

Ice Cream which has been melted and refrozen must not under any circumstances be sold.

Outside containers such as tubs and packages containing bricks of ice cream, or other containers which come under the view of the public, must be stamped pasteurized or nonpasteurized and bear the name and address of the manufacturer. This regulation does not apply to cake cones or to collapsible measures.

Neglect to comply with these regulations which will be strictly enforced makes the party concerned liable to a fine not less than $50 and not more than $200 for a first offence, or three months imprisonment, or both.

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS WILL BE HELD ON MONDAY JUNE 28th

The die is cast; the date is set; and the Farmers' government of Alberta will stand or fall on the returns as they are counted after the polls on Monday June 28th next.

The date was set at a caucus held on Thursday last, which decided that nomination day shall be June 15th, with election day fifteen days later.

All the election machinery oiled up and ready to start, according to John D. Hunt, chief election officer.

The trial at the polls this year will be the first time the new Alberta election act has been applied in a province-wide way, having been previously in force for a number of, by-elections only.

Similarly it will be the first test of preferential voting in a general election while in the Edmonton and Calgary, ridings there will be trials of the failed proportional representation system. With the exception of these two ridings all the seats will be one member each.

There will be 52 seats, with 60 members to elect, the extra eight members being divided equally between Edmonton and Calgary. Medicine Hat, which formerly had two members, will now be a urban riding, confined to four townships, but including Redcliff town and a number of surrounding hamlets.

The rural sections of the original Medicine Hat and Redcliff constituencies will now figure on the list as Cypress and Empress respectively.

Eight of the ridings, have already nominated candidates on the government U.F.A. ticket. Premier Brownlee is down as Ponoka's standard-bearer again, and Hon. George Hoadley will run in Okotoks. Nominations will be made in the other constituencies between now and June 12 and meetings for that purpose are now being held.

It is expected that Labor will run twelve candidates. Edmonton has already nominated a slate of five and Edmonton and Rocky Mountain have also made their nominations. Calgary will name three Labor men. It is under-

COMPANY TO DRILL TEST WELLS DOWN TO 5 000 FT. OR MORE

In spite of the fact that the shallow oil producing strata in the Wainwright and eastern Alberta oil fields have scarcely been tapped there is already some discussion regarding the future of the Wainwright field says the Oil and Gas News, as a big area for 'gas'.

It has been suggested that if the present production sands are all that Wainwright has to offer, that the field is not going to be one of the largest oil areas in the world, and that drillers must begin to look for some "real wells" at a depth of 5000 feet and more to catch the financial interest of the outside world.

While it is very early yet to discuss the limits of the present production sands, the possibility of finding a high oil gravity oil at a greater depth is not uninteresting and has received some consideration from oil experts.

In discussing the limits of the Wainwright field the fact must be borne in mind that a shallow low pressure field indicates oil of comparatively low gravity known to be very much longer and surer life than a field which brings in spasmodic gushers having a capacity of several thousand barrels a day.

The Wainwright field is just beginning to be developed and when there are one thousand rigs operating in that area much more will be known about the present producing structures than at present.

Compared with the Turner Valley drilling wells at Wainwright is like putting down back-yard water wells. If rotary rigs are used they can be finished in about 35 to 45 days since the rotary fairly eats the rock down to 2228 feet. Above this is a cap rock of unusual hardness, so that the oil effectively and giving drillers their only real obstacle to quick completion. Production is about 2230 feet, and is from a sand about 40 feet thick.

The oil is about 19 to 20 degrees heavier gravity, and is of asphaltic base. Market price has been estimated to be about $12.5 a barrel.

The Canadian National Railway has successfully used Wainwright crude oil as fuel in oil burning locomotives. At first the crude was not treated in any way but was fed direct to the burners as it came from the well and its success in being so used is an admirable recommendation of its adaptability. Subsequently the oil was treated in the Edmonton refinery before being used in the locomotives. At present the refinery is supplying fuel oil for the railway at the rate of one and one-half tank carsloads a day. The crude for this order is taken from B.P. well No. 3B at Wainwright.

Distillation of Wainwright oil has proved that commercial quantities of gasoline, kerosene and heavy oils are obtainable at slight cost.

Under the Cross cracking process Wainwright oil has been found to yield to a greater extent than 40% gasoline with a valuable asphaltic residue. The value of the present field therefore may be said to have been proved, whether more strata are discovered or not.

However, with a view to ascertaining just what structure does underlay the present Wainwright field one company now operating has announced its intention of putting down four or five wells to a depth of 5,500 feet or more regardless of what is encountered on the way.

If this is done, a great deal of valuable information regarding the field will be brought to light and it is quite possible that more than one producing sand will be tapped by a deep drill.

Geologists, reporting on the field in the past have invariably commented on the possibility of greater production at a greater depth and have urged companies to drill some purely test wells. The experiment is carried out will be watched keenly by oil men, and Lethbridge and Medicine Hat will have one each. There will probably be no U.F.A. candidates in ridings contested by Labor, but every where, except according to the present plan the Farmers will have a ticket.

The old line parties will also be out in good force.

Already the Conservatives have nominated 47 candidates and the Liberals have made their selections to the number of 46.

The coming election is expected to set a new record in economy. An appropriation of $130,000 was made for it at the winter session of the legislature, and this it was believed would cover all necessary expenses. If it does the saving will amount to nearly one-half on the cost of the last general election for in 1921 the figures were $252,000.

Nothing daunted, Freddy commenced
the second verse.

"Moi pour ces deux mots, ces mots d'amour!"

"One moment, Freddy," interrupted Michael holding up his hand, "for some unaccountable reason the people outside seem to be objecting to your singing. Listen—"

"Holla-holla, good people, and who is dying up there?" a girl's clear voice floated through the window on the crest of a wave of laughter.

Michael and his guests walked to the balcony and looked out upon a band of revellers who had evidently stepped aside from the main jam and lingered to enjoy the atrocity of Freddy's vocal effort. A strange sight they presented, dressed in every conceivable costume and armed with balloons tied to sticks.

From out their midst a girl in the costume of Columbine suddenly broke into a mad dance accompanied by the handclapping of the others. Slim and petite, with a dainty little figure well set off by her abbreviated costume, she seemed the very essence of youth and laughter as she pirouetted there in the moonlight. At the height of her dance she stopped to blow a kiss to Michael and his friends, who were watching her with genuine interest and admiration.

"Voila, we have a distinguished audience with us! Ladies and gentlemen, I beg you to show us the poor fellow who sounded as one in the throes of death? (Was 't you, M'sieu?)" The girl saucily pointed to Michael.

"No, I am sorry I cannot claim the distinction. But pray continue your dance—it is entrancing."

"The cobblestones hurt my poor feet, M'sieu," the girl protested, hopping about on one foot while slinger, nursing the other.

"Then allow me to offer the floor of my humble salon," said Michael on an impulse of sheer whimsy. Turning to a servant he gave instructions to admit the detached group of revellers.

"In they pell-mell knocking over chairs, tossing the heavy draperies aside in wild exuberance. Led by Columbine, they marched round and round the room singing and merrily chas-tising the original guests with toy balloons. Finally they re-banquet table and ravenously devoured every edible thing they could find.

Columbine was plainly the life of that little crowd; her vivacity and freshness interested Michael. A mass of coal black hair was carelessly done up high on her head and a determined little chin revealed itself from beneath gave her a boyish appearance in her mask. Her laugh was infectious and her sweet, trim, tight little body spite of her scanty and revealing white costume.

And what is your name, ma cherie?
asked Michael sitting down beside her.
"Colette, M'sieu," she answered be-

"I will not detain Monsieur Michael from his guests any longer, Dolores said wearily, then asked: "May I be permitted to rest for a moment before departing?"

"Pray do so, Mademoiselle, by all means," Michael bowed, then he and

"Another attack of broken heart, I suppose," Armand found time to observe. "Heaven help you should all your loves come together one night, Paris would be over populated!"

Michael shrugged. "If women will make fools of themselves, well, they must suffer," he said airily. "That terrible interview has left my throat parched."

"They entered the ballroom too late for Michael to see the dance, Colette and Freddy had just sunk exhausted in their chairs, to the accompaniment of loud applause from their audience.
"Freddy, if you could only sing as well as you dance there would be some hope for you," cried Ninon as she fetched him a glass of champagne.

"My charming partner inspired me," Freddy replied, "for I must admit that even in the course of my career have I executed so many intricate and impossible steps! Have no fear, for I am far too exhausted to enthrall you with my singing any more tonight."

Colette, seated in a corner, was the subject of congratulations from the men assembled around her. She graciously extended her hand to Michael as he approached.

"How sorry I am that I was forced to miss your charming performance, Perhaps you will favor us again after you have rested?"

"But, M'sieu, I am not tired," she protested eagerly. "Dancing is life and food to me. I never weary of it."

And the mask, Colette?

"The mask, M'sieu, is irremovable—surely you will respect my wish!"

anxiously. Then, as if to change the subject, she stood up. "M'sieu Michael rejoice! this dance is in your honor."

She motioned to the orchestra which commenced to play a weird, gypsy air. Colette, entering into the rhythm of the music, began a wild improvised dance.

Faster and faster played the musicians; faster and faster Colette whirled until her little figure seemed hardly to touch the floor. The guests looked on in unfeigned admiration.

Michael curiously watched this little Columbine of the streets. Who was she? Where did she come from? Probably a model or a mannequin, and in reality just as tame as the rest of the species; but somehow, she was like a refreshing breath of youth.

The musicians caught the verve of the little dancer and played spirited-ly. But suddenly Colette stopped, gave a little gasp, and dropped unconscious to the floor as her overtaxed heart and body gave way. Michael rushed to her, picked her up gently and carried her to a couch, meantime telling Armand
to get some wine and water.

Colette's mask having fallen off, a pale little face was revealed there on the cushions; she seemed so like a tired child as Michael bathed her forehead. After a few moments, she gave a sigh and opened her eyes. Smiling bravely at Michael she tried to rise, but the effort was too much for her.

"Be quiet, Colette, be quiet!" warned Michael, patting her hand. "I will carry you to a couch on the balcony, where the fresh air will soon revive you."

In spite of Colette's feeble protestations, he lifted her in his strong arms and walked towards the balcony.

As Michael reached the center of the room, the hallway doors were suddenly thrown open wide by a servant who announced sonorously and impressively:

"Her Highness, the Grand Duchess Sophia!"

CHAPTER TWO

It was a tense moment. No one moved or spoke. Michael, with Colette cuddled in his arms stood rooted in his tracks under the cold and haughty eyes of the royal newcomer.

Presently the Duchess' thin voice broke on the heavy silence like the snapping of an icicle:

"So this is the important business which you told me my nephew was engaged in," she said accusingly to the unfortunate servant who had loyally done everything in his power to delay her entry into the ballroom.

The Grand Duchess was short and of generous weight; her flashing eyes and thin, decisive lips plainly revealed that she was accustomed to having her own way; blue-blood and willfulness went together in her.

Ninon rushed playfully into his arms.
"And may I ask, Michael, who is this person who seems to be so clingingly attached to you?" she rapped with a chill look at Colette still in Michael's arms.

Michael wet his lips and came to life. "The poor little girl fainted while dancing, my dear aunt," he answered suaively, again in full command of his composure, "and if you will pardon me for a moment, I will take her on the balcony, where the air will refresh
her."

He hastily carried Colette outside and laid her on a chaise longue. As-sling Armand to look after her, Michael then returned to the ballroom—and the Duchess.

"This is indeed a delightful surprise for I did not expect you until tomorrow," he said, although his feelings belied his words.

"And Paul here, too? How are you, my dear brother?" shaking the hand of a young chap who had followed the Grand Duchess and who had witnessed the embarrassing scene with unholy glee."

Ten years younger than his brother,
Michael Paul was of an entirely different type. His was a pale, dreamy face with a peculiarly wistful smile.
Michael was devoted to him and always looked forward to his visits, enroute to college where he was finishing his last year. Michael had always shielded this younger brother from the gay, effervescent existence that had been his own lot. He had tried to interest Paul in the finer things of life.
Not that Paul had no taste for a pretty face; for he had, indeed, as some of the girls at some of the girls that grouped around him attested. It was, rather, that Michael, possibly realizing the hollowness and idleness of his own career, had determined that he would do all in his power to prevent Paul from following in his foot-steps.

"Exactly the same Michael, I observe,"
said his aunt looking around disapprovingly at the strange medley of guests. "Always the same old story.
Wine a day time; more wine, a gayer time. What a fool you have been—and are—"

—and probably will be until the end of my days, my dear Aunt. Michael broke in blithely, resting his hand on Paul's shoulder. "Somehow or other I seem to experience considerable difficulty in changing my nature. Have you been here long?"

"No. We waited in the library for a few moments until that fool of a servant realized that I was fully determined to see you, business or no business. But I guess his bad manners aren't his fault!" she remarked, with a meaningful smirk.

"I met a charming young lady in there," broke in Paul. "She seemed rather unhappy so I naturally did my best to cheer her."

Michael bit his lips vexedly. He thought Dolores had gone and was amused at the idea of Paul meeting her. If Paul and Aunt Sophia had only come on the morrow, as they had planned, what a relief it would have been if his Aunt was plainly annoyed at him he could see that; but after all, that in-self was nothing unusual for accounts of his gaieties seemed to be carried to her willing ears, with startling regularity. Her lectures and outbursts of condemnation over his "barbaric life" as she termed it, were numerous and lengthy.

"It is late, Michael, and I cannot stay," the Grand Duchess said. "I only wanted to make sure Paul would be taken care of, and I would suggest that he retire soon for God only knows when you will finally allow the thought of sleep to enter your head!
Perhaps Paul would rather come back with me tonight?"

"No, no, I will see that Paul gets a good night's rest, and you know how I look forward to the few days that he spends with me. Good night, dear Aunt. One of these days I may completely surprise you by retiring early

DEATH AND TAXES CAN'T BE DODGED

Someone has said that there are two things in this life that are irresistible and remorseless: "Death and taxes." According to the Russellites it may be possible to escape the former, but we don't know of any way to dodge the latter. It is about the time of the year—when everything around is beginning to look very pleasing and nature is putting on her beautiful spring garments—that we may expect that never-failing letter that tends to take the joy out of life—the Tax Notice!

For the time being we forget how nice our gardens are looking and how sweetly the birds are singing and pucker our brows whilst considering how these amounts are going to be met—for meet them we must, or suffer the alternative of eventually being sold up. Taxes are the most sacred things in our civil economy!

Seeing these things are so we often wonder why taxpayers allow themselves to get into arrears and thereby jeopardize their property. For our own sakes we think it is better to pay our taxes, even if we have to cut down on something else, than to run the risk by neglecting them and then to have our property sold at a tax sale—because it is an expensive game redeeming it after the sale has taken place.

We look at it this way: If we can't pay our taxes this year, how do we hope to pay them next year, and the arrears and costs as well. Oftentimes one's affairs have not improved in the second and third years—neglecting to pay—and the burden comes too heavy to pay current taxes and two years' arrears as well—then it is good-bye!

There is another thing to be borne in mind—We believe there are $10,000 arrears owing to the town at the present moment—which if paid would result in lowering the rate 18 to 20 mills ON US ALL. The town must have money to keep things going; and the people who DON'T pay. True the man heavily in arrears who has been sold for taxes may say "You have got my property as security, and I have to pay 10 per cent. to redeem it out this leaves out of consideration the years during which he has paid no money to the town, and someone else has been compelled to dig it up—with the result the mills have been forced upwards steadily—making the burden heavier for those who do pay. If only all the taxes could be collected when due it would benefit every ratepayer about $2.00 on every $100 of assessment.

Supposing all failed to meet their obligations to the town, how long would they last? We must have schools, roads, sidewalks, police and fire protection, scavenging, etc. etc. which ALL citizens enjoy; but those who don't pay. Taxes may be high—in fact, they are—but delinquents can't escape responsibility for a good deal of it.

Nobody really enjoys paying taxes but we only have Hobson's choice in the matter—so it is best to pay a little after due as possible—get what little rebate we can by doing so—and bite hard on our old molars—and forget it. By so doing we shall soon cease to pay interest on borrowed money at the bank. "A word to the wise," etc.

HISTORICAL INCIDENTS: PROVE THAT PLEASURE IS VERY COSTLY

History is full of cases where men and women have paid great prices for pleasure. However, "The Price of Pleasure," Universal-Jewel, co-starring Virginia Valli and Norman Kerry, and showing at the theatre tonight and tomorrow night, is not based on anything from the written history of any great person. It is a picture taken from the lives of people in the walks of life that are familiar to all.

In the case of "The Price of Pleasure," that which is paid is heartache and despair—that which is paid for is a mad love and the luxury and gaiety that a mad craves, even though she knows full well that it is far beyond her realization in the ordinary course of things.

"The Price of Pleasure" is one of Universal's famous White List for the release season 1924-25, and it has been out long enough for the engine to have heated, for if the rain or snow is left to dry they will stain the hood and leave it spotted.

If his cleaning is done regularly throughout the year you will be surprised and altogether satisfied at the continual new appearance of your car. You are naturally clean yourself? Well, then give the car the same well groomed appearance. It's good business.

EDMONTON EXHIBITION TO CELEBRATE CITY'S
COMING OF AGE

The Edmonton Exhibition Association have this year decided to make a special effort to fittingly commemorate the 'coming of age' of the city and province; to this end a mammoth historical pageant is being arranged requiring a cast of 600 people, to depict the progress that has been made since the coming of the white man to Alberta.

Dr. Courser wishes to inform his clientele that during his absence, Dr. A. Sheehan, of Edmonton, will be acting as his locum tenens. The new dentist will visit Irma on Tuesdays and Edgerton on Thursdays as usual.

was written especially for Miss Valli and Kerry by two of the most famous of writers of original stories, Elizabeth Holding and Marion Orth, and it is said to be one of the most convincing stories of real life men and women screened in a long time.

SUMMERFALLOW TREATMENT

The experiments in summerfallowing which have been conducted at the Dominion Experimental Station, at Scott, Sask., include depth of ploughing, subsoiling, twice ploughing, date of ploughing, pasturing of fallow, fall and spring cultivation previous to summerfallowing and cultivating during summer without ploughing.

The soil at Scott is a chocolate loam of slightly sandy nature and the average annual precipitation is thirteen inches.

In the depth of ploughing experiment the plots were ploughed from three to eight inches deep inclusive and the highest average yield of first crop wheat for eleven years was obtained from the four inch ploughing. The lowest yields were from the three inch and eight inch ploughings, which were the same, and only 1.4 bushels less than the highest yield. Subsoiling resulted in a lower yield than from the four inch ploughing. An increase of three bushels per acre was obtained by ploughing four inches in June and six inches in September but the ploughing at the same depth in each case or deeper in June and shallower in September has not proven profitable.

In the date of ploughing experiment the first crop of wheat after fallow ploughed on the 15th of May, June and July resulted in average yields of 30.5, 27.9 and 25.6 bushels per acre and the oats in the second crop 63.2, 58.9 and 59.8 bushels respectively.

The seeding of one half bushel of oats per acre on summerfallow after ploughing early in June and pasturing it has resulted in a reduction in yield in the first crop of wheat of 2.4 bushels per acre as compared with bare summerfallow ploughed the same depth. The ten year average yields from all ploughing four inches deep, fall cultivating and spring cultivating previous to summerfallowing are 26.6, 26.0 and 28.3 bushels, per acre respectively for the first crop of wheat after fallow as compared with 26.8 bushels per acre from fallow not cultivated before summerfallowing.

KEEP YOUR CAR CLEAN

Show me a dirty automobile and I'll show you a fellow who believes that Saturday night is the time to make more home-brew in the bath tub. Water won't hurt the finish of a car any more than it will hurt the surface of the human body. No wise cracks now.

When the car is to be washed the first thing to do is to remove as much of the dust as is possible with a light wool duster. But above all do not wipe off the dirt as this operation rubs the dirt and grit into the varnish and destroys the high luster. Use clean clear water in washing a car—a running stream with only enough pressure behind it to keep it flowing. A sponge and chamois should also be used—but be properly used. Keep them dripping wet all the time, and rinse them out every few minutes so as to prevent grit and dirt adhering to the sponge of chamois. This is highly important.

If the car is sufficiently dirty to use soap make positive that the soap is the regulation automobile soap and is free from alkali. The under side of the fenders can be cleaned with a fender brush that is made solely for that purpose. Such a brush is shaped to conform with the contour of the fender and will remove all the dirt with but little effort on the part of the washer.

After the car is clean go over it with another chamois and sponge to remove all the moisture. If the car is new no polish should be used, but a cleaner and polish is necessary on cars where the finish is dull. In most cases the finish is merely dull and a good cleaning polish will bring back the original luster.

In the winter season it is a good plan to wipe off the car every time it has been out in the rain or snow. This is very essential if the car has been out long enough for the engine to have heated, for if the rain or snow is left to dry they will stain the hood and leave it spotted.

If his cleaning is done regularly throughout the year you will be surprised and altogether satisfied at the continual new appearance of your car. You are naturally clean yourself? Well, then give the car the same well groomed appearance. It's good business.

An Experiment That Succeeded

Five years ago the people of Alberta, disgusted with the failure of Party Government to function to the advantage of the Province, defeated the candidates of the party machines, and experimented with a Government composed of men with no previous parliamentary experience, but actuated by a desire to serve the people's interests.

Five years have elapsed since that election. The Government formed then, goes back to the electors this month for their verdict.

The party machines are doing their utmost to defeat the only business and non-party Government the Province has ever had. U.F.A. candidates are responsible to their constituents, not to Ottawa. They have no blessings from Mackenzie King or Meighen, no patronage to distribute, no promise to make but that of continued good Government.

The members of the U.F.A. have subscribed funds and contracted for this space in the Wainwright Star and in the limited time and space available from now till election day will endeavor to broadcast the facts. Further facts will be given at U.F.A. meetings to be held in your district, at which your attendance is invited.

THE COMING OF AMOS' SURPRISES ALL EXPECTATIONS

"The Coming of Amos" the Cecil B. DeMille supervised production starring Rod La Rocque which plays at the Elite Theatre next Mon. and Tues. gives a long looked for opportunity to give vent to a whole column of pure and unadulterated enthusiasm. It has surpassed fondest expectations.

Rod La Rocque, in the leading role of "Amos" gives a performance worthy of his role and of the story and has proven the trust which the greatest of filmdom's producers bestowed upon him in elevating him to stardom. Jetta Goudie, featured as the leading woman in the role of the beautiful Russian princess takes every advantage to make her brilliant and colorful screen personality felt in her slightest move and action. Noah Beery, as the villain is everything a villain should be, could be, and more.

Under the admirable direction of Paul Sloane this story runs along over the vast and spreading wastes of an Australian sheep ranch; up and down the gay ways of the Riviera; in and out of beautiful mansions; along a path of love, hate, peril and intrigue. It is an old fashioned melodrama in a new and modern setting, adapted from the famous novel by William J. Lockt, and heightened with the expert touches of showmanship from the hand of a premier producer of film spectacles and a noted director of highly entertaining film stories.

Legends of the St. Lawrence River in Quebec

GODLINS OF THE ST. LAWRENCE

Folk tales and legends still cling to the shores of the St. Lawrence, that first highway into the unknown continent of North America. Legends in which are mingled bits of Indian superstition, French customs and religious beliefs. In the time of the early explorers, those brave men who dreamed dreams which led them on and over the bright waters, past dark lalands, purple hills and shining cliffs, until they settled in Canada, these legends were revered. Now, however, while large Canadian Pacific steamships crowded with tourists ply up and down the St. Lawrence, the legends are no longer regarded except as quaint fairy tales with somewhat of a religious favour not to be disregarded or ridiculed, but to be enjoyed as reminiscent of the olden days when saints and demons assumed mortal forms.

Katherine Hale, in an artistic little book issued by the Canadian Pacific Railway recently, ably depicts many of these stories. One of the most familiar of these French Canadian legends is that of Loup-Garou.

Loup-Garou

belief in supernatural intervention. Joachim Crete, a miller of Beauséjour was not really a bad man, but he did die at church collections and failed to try to convert his hired man merely because he was such a good partner at checkers. On Christmas night they played, instead of going to church. They even, in a mood of defiance, set the mill going, as if it were an ordinary night. Suddenly crack! and the mill stopped working. Then the lantern went out, and the two men were left in trembling darkness! After that the hired man tumbled down stairs, and the miller began to drink fast and furiously! Presently he heard a deep moaning, and turned to see a huge dog about to attack him. Then the miller knew it was Loup-Garou, and he fell on his knees praying for forgiveness. But he lunged at the dog with a reaping hook, and wounded him. That was the saving of the hired man, for according to the legend, if you have been turned into the form of a wolf or dog because of evil deeds, only a bloody wound can restore you. Loup-Garou is one of many such legends of the St. Lawrence and the

"If that ever happens, then the day of miracles has not yet passed," and with that irony lingering in the air behind her like crackling meteor dust, the Grand Duchess Sophia departed.

"One more score in Aunt Sophia's black book," groaned Michael to his brother. "Well, we can't all be saints."

So, with many laughs and thanks the motley crew departed, leaving the room once more to Michael and his friends.

Noticing Paul's absence, Michael assumed that he had grown weary of waiting and had retired. So Michael threw himself into the breach that his aunt's visit had caused and soon dispelled the gloom.

arm about the girl beside him. Her head suddenly rested on his shoulder.

The perfumed glory of the hair of Contemara, half long, half short brushed his cheek warmly, intoxicatingly. Then two strong hands grasped her shoulders and Contemara found herself swung out at arms length facing him, his fine level eyes burning into hers, his smiling mouth inviting.

"Oh, David!"

Contemara's happy, choked little gasp ended incoherently as Lacy's lips met hers.

"The guy," opined Sweetie judiciously, "is no slouch. Ah! They're coming up for air at last!"

Saltonstall Cabot Adams coughed. Or it may have been Bingham Carrington—certainly one of the two. A distinctly self-conscious cough.

David Lacy turned toward them, his fiancée on his arm. He held out his hand.

"Won't you congratulate me?" he asked.

"Better than that—congratulate me!" It wasn't her hand which Contemara held out, but her lips. And first Bingham then Salt kissed her.

"You dear boys!" she cried. "Please will you both be our best man—best men, I mean?"

"The wedding," added Lacy, "is this afternoon."

"At which point the door. McTish contributed his first mite of galloping conversation."

"A verro grand," he burred, "and my pleasure is to make the first married present. Here it is! From some where about him the little Scotsman extracted the pretentious roll of bills Lacy had received from Contemara after the talk with Sweetie in the moonlit sitting room."

"The fifty grand!" exclaimed Sweetie. "Potes sake, how that can change hands!"

"The same. It's coming to my frier Lacy, away—it's his capture. As the rest of that precious lot has cleaned out, except this Swiss girl."

"Oh, she's staying with me. Contemara interposed. 'Arent you Sweetie To which that young woman vehemently replied, 'Unanimous!'"

"Them being gone, as I said, it's easiest to forget em. McTish continued. 'The gangs broken up, an there'll be a reorganization in the Shanghai Line too. Anyway, out of the roll Lacy can fix up the loss of the Bloody Nuisance, and a' the rest o' it.'"

"I knew it right along!" gurgled Contemara ecstatically. "Tear up the child I have the papers! And to think it could have happened in Connecticut!"

"Long Island mostly," corrected Lacy. He added, "And Autel!"

Her eyes smiled into his.

"Autel! I remembered you when I first got into the car. I remember your mother too—charming mer have charming mothers, don't they? Connecticut? Autel! Everywhere—always!" She sighed dreamily. "The happy beginning!"

Whatever reply she may have intended to that final interpolation of his was quite completely crushed from her, as David Lacy drew her to him. "Autel!" whispered Sweetie to the cabot gesture she herded Saltonstall Cabot Adams and Bingham Carrington toward the hall door. "Come, you see—this here is a private rehearsal."

THE END

"Bobbed Hair" is a picture of this story by TWENTY FAMOUS AUTHORS

It was Contemara, irreverent, biting. Then all at once she softened. Putting out her arms she took Bings nearest hand in one of hers, and Salts in the other.

"Hing dear, Salt dear, she said her voice richly happy. You're both right—and she laughed in their puzzled faces—truly I don't want to be mean old dears, but— She stopped there for a moment, with a little excited intaking of her breath. Then, with a would be fiancé by either hand, she stepped out from the shadows into the full light of the moon. "You see, in a way you're both right. Also—look—you're both wrong!"

They looked again, and saw. On one side of the hair of Contemara was bobbed. On the other its luxurious fullness was untouched.

"I told you, Contemara continued every matter-of-factly, "that if I bobbed it meant Bing; if not I chose Salt. Well you see dear boys, when that blessed barber got started I had a funk and made him stop right in the middle. I just didn't know. Then I had to keep the awful mess hidden I thought that perhaps by midnight I could make up my mind. And then, all at once, I realized positively that I simply couldn't. That was impossible. Perhaps," she smiled brightly at the disconcerted men—"perhaps it was because I liked each of you too well to be willing to give him up, even for the other. Anyway, I ducked out. You know what's happened since—the madhouse right we've all had."

"A word admirably chosen," Contemara added judiciously. "Admirably," Contemara added sweetly. After all Aunt Celina was you who really started it all with that edict of yours that I'd have to announce my engagement by midnight or lose Moorehead!"

Aunt Celina sniffed. "In a way you've done that already, my dear. The important thing is your marriage by October."

Exactly, Contemara agreed once more.

Came then, as the movies have it an interruption unexpected, in the person of David Lacy.

"Why wait until October?"

A startled silence followed. A brief silence, all at once broken by Contemara's mischievous laugh.

"Why, indeed?"

With which curious comment Contemara Mary Moore stepped boldly—even brazenly—across the intervening yard of moonlit porch to stand close beside Lacy.

"May I?" He bent toward her.

"Just a minute. First, ladies and gentlemen, and whatever, let me announce my engagement. . . to Mr. David Lacy"

Aunt Celina nodded her head rigidly. "No news to me? Then a smile softened the old lady's face. "This time are you sure, Contemara Mary?"

"Quite."

"That—Aunt Celina spoke with the deliberation of an oracle—that is, all I wanted. Young man, I congratulate you! With which Miss Celina Moore gathered her dressing gown about her grout should—as regularly as angular spinsterhood is disallowed permitted, and left the company to their own devices."

Without waiting for the exhibit to be completed, David Lacy slipped his

"The little rascal" he said. Just as irresponsible as all gnomes.

And yet did he in his heart believe that? His eyes fell on her mask where it had fallen beside the couch. Absently, he picked it up. Just a fluffy, trilling thing, but somehow its daintiness seemed symbolic of her.

Thrusting the mask into his pocket, Michael rejoined his guests in the hall room just as Colette's friends were leaving; he insisted that they fill their pockets with fruit and bonbons from the table.

"You may get hungry ere dawn, so but for the life of me I fail to see her fortify yourselves well; and if you see reason for disapproving of tonight's my little Columbine again, pray pre-little party. I hope that I shall never sent her with this apple, and tell her the stage where the Fete de la la that not only is it the judgment of the Mi-Creme means nothing to me. And Rex Chagrin—it is the judgment of now, my dear Paul, please amuse your Paris."

FIFTH ANNUAL TOUR TO THE PACIFIC COAST

Special Train Leaving Winnipeg July 5, via Canadian National Railways. Entertainment Provided at Various of Interest en Route.

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED

Following the close of school for the summer holidays, the Canadian National Railways will again operate its popular "personally conducted" tour to the Pacific Coast. This will be the fifth of such tours.

This mode of travel has many advantages. In the first place, it is planned with a view to including in the itinerary the most interesting points, which, with the other arrangements that are made: obviates the necessity of the passenger worrying about connections, sleeping car accommodation, meals, and entertainment en route. This is all done in advance by experts leaving the passenger free to enjoy to the full the scenery and attractions attendant to such tours.

The tour this year will commence at Winnipeg, from which point a special train of modern sleeping car equipment, dining, car and radio observation car, will leave July 5th. After stopping at various points of interest, the train will arrive at Rupert on July 10th. At this latter point the party will embark on a palatial steamship for a cruise of 550 miles through the famous "Inside Passage" to Vancouver. While the tour terminates at Vancouver, those who desire to make a trip to Victoria may have their tickets read "Victoria" as their destination without any additional cost.

The local agent of the Canadian National Railways will be pleased to give you full particulars of this tour
